

Internet Use Policy

Approved by: Eastern Counties Regional Library Board
Approved Date: March 29, 2018
Effective Date: February 1, 2019

Eastern Counties Regional Library (ECRL) provides access to its Internet services for your convenience, and you are only permitted to use the service as described in this Internet Use policy.

When you access and/or use the Internet service, you agree to follow these terms of use. You agree that:

- you are fully responsible for your actions when you use the service,
- your use of the service will be lawful and respect the rights and interests of others, and
- you are aware that your information is not encrypted (protected), and you are using the service at your own risk.

Eastern Counties Regional Library may change these Terms of Use at any time without notifying you, so you should review them each time you use the Internet service. Your continued use of the service indicates your acceptance of the modified terms.

As with other library materials and services, supervision of a child's access to the Internet is the responsibility of the parent/legal guardian, or the person who has signed the child's library card.

If you ignore or breach these Terms of Use, ECRL has the right to end your access to the Internet service and contact law enforcement if appropriate.

Questions?

If you have any questions or concerns about this policy or its related procedures please contact the Chief Librarian at 902-747-2597.